

Umspannwerk Alexanderplatz // Information and facts

The former Umspannwerk Alexanderplatz (electrical substation at Alexanderplatz) was built in 1960, and was the main energy supplier of East Berlin. Even after reunification in 1989, the Umspannwerk Alexanderplatz continued to be used to generate power, and was not shut down until 2002.

Since September 2011, the Umspannwerk has been run by the company Wahre Werte, which is responsible for marketing the spaces.

The Umspannwerk Alexanderplatz is today used as a function venue providing the ideal setting for events of all kinds with up to 1,200 guests.

Whether it is meetings, conferences, parties, fashion shows, receptions or car presentations, the Umspannwerk can host it all.

The team from Wahre Werte will gladly assist you with your planning arranging reliable partners for you where necessary. From technical planning to furniture and decorations, to selecting caterers, the Wahre Werte network covers a wide range of service providers to suit your personal requests and budget.

Umspannwerk Alexanderplatz // Event spaces

The event spaces at the Umspannwerk Alexanderplatz stretch over four levels. Functions can be held on the ground floor with its impressive, trademark Main Hall, 360-degree bar area and Trafobox (transformer box). The Galerie (gallery) is located on the 1st floor.

The ground floor features two permanent bars and a large cloakroom facility. The Main Hall and Trafobox are interconnected via the Galerie on the upper level. As the Galerie has a separate entrance, it is commonly used as a booth or VIP area. Bar facilities are available here as well.

In spring 2012, the 2nd and 3rd levels were extended to include the Conference Hall (plus "Empore") and another large events space with natural daylight. The access via an outdoor stair tower means that the areas are connected separately to the lower levels. The outdoor area is also very versatile, and can be used for receptions, red-carpet events, photo walls, exhibition space for artists and marquees, as well as catering/barbeque stations.
